

INSIGHTS + NEWS

Wall Street Journal quotes Tim Van Dyck in “The Morning Risk Report: Volkswagen CCO Payout Raises Questions”

FEBRUARY 2, 2017

The Wall Street Journal quoted Tim Van Dyck in an article published this morning covering the departure of Volkswagen’s Chief of Compliance. The company will pay the outgoing Compliance Chief, Christine Hohmann-Dennhardt, more than 12 million euros for just thirteen months of service. Commentators and Volkswagen’s investors are suspicious of her high compensation, which comes in the wake of 2015’s diesel emissions scandal.

You can read “The Morning Risk Report: Volkswagen CCO Payout Raises Questions” on The Wall Street Journal’s website.