Christopher Mehne and Kathryn Szewczyk Write “Shedding Light On Blind Trusts” for Private Wealth Magazine

BY BOWDITCH & DEWEY • JUNE 14, 2017

Private Wealth Magazine published the article “Shedding Light On Blind Trusts” by Christopher Mehne and Kathryn Szewczyk in the Summer 2017 issue of its publication. Here is an excerpt from the article:

Blind trusts are typically associated with politicians who seek to avoid conflicts of interest while occupying public office. However, Donald Trump, Barack Obama and Hillary Clinton are not the only ones who have had to consider this unique planning tool. Executives in the private sector can also benefit from blind trusts to remain in compliance with securities and insider trading laws while accomplishing their personal and financial objectives.
