

INSIGHTS + NEWS

Bowditch & Dewey and The Venture Forum Present: Craft Brewer Entrepreneurship – Dual Concepts and Shared Spaces

Wednesday, October 18, 2017 from 6 – 8pm

3Cross Brewing Company, 26 Cambridge Street, Worcester, MA

Bowditch & Dewey and the Venture Forum invite you to a second program on craft brewer entrepreneurship. The program will discuss the use of dual concepts and shared spaces in the industry. Brewers are managing multiple business and brands from one location, such as coffee shops in the morning and tap rooms in the evening.

Featured speakers:

David Kushner – Remnant Brewing

David is a Suffolk University Law School graduate and co-founder of Remnant Brewing, a new brewery and taproom slated to open at Bow Market in Union Square, Somerville. His previous brewing positions include head of cellar operations of Lord Hobo Brewing Co., cellar and filter operator at Harpoon Brewery, and assistant brewer at John Harvard's Brewery.

Dani Babineau – Redemption Rock Brewery

Dani is co-founder and CEO at Redemption Rock Brewery, a brewery-in-planning that hopes to open in early 2018 in Worcester, MA. Her background is in construction management and architecture, or “creative problem solving”. Dani holds a B.S. in Architecture from Northeastern University and an MBA in Entrepreneurship from Babson College.

Ted Twinney – Start Line Brewery

Ted began Start Line Brewing with a simple vision: explore, learn, and expand in the craft brewing world. To perfect their craft (pun intended), he and the Start Line team attended Siebel Institute of Technology, aka “brewing school”, met with local suppliers, and shadowed other craft brewers. The brewery is located at Water Fresh Farm in Hopkinton, MA, which specializes in the hydroponic farming of their own local and natural products. Together, Ted and Water Fresh Farm established their own Hydroponic Hops project, which was the basis of the brewery.