Jen Garner speaks on SSHAGLY career panel

JUNE 11, 2018

Jen Garner spoke on a career development panel for the South Shore Alliance of Gay and Lesbian Youth (SSHAGLY), which is an affiliate of the Boston Alliance of Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual, Transgender Youth (BAGLY). Both alliances are youth-led, adult-supported social support organizations that are “committed to social justice and creating, sustaining, and advocating for programs, policies, and services” for the LGBTQ community. Garner provided valuable advice on topics like whether or not you should come out on your resume and how to navigate professional situations.

Stay in tune with the latest news and analyses related to diversity on The Case for Inclusion blog, which Garner actively writes for.
