

INSIGHTS + NEWS

Worcester Business Journal Interviews Bob Cox in “Bowditch courting new attorneys”

APRIL 17, 2019

The Worcester Business Journal recently interviewed Bowditch Managing Partner Bob Cox about recent initiatives by the firm.

When asked why the firm is looking for younger attorneys, Bob said in the article:

Our partners are committed to having the law firm continue after us. Bowditch has been here for more than 100 years, and we would like it to continue for another 100 years. Like the legal profession, our partners are getting older. Some have retired, and some are getting ready to retire. We have to transition our practices to the next generation of attorneys.

We really are committed to the long-term presence of our firm in Worcester. It is important to our identity as a firm. It has been exciting to be a part of Worcester for so long.

Continue reading “Bowditch courting new attorneys” on the Worcester Business Journal website.