Eileen Lee Breger Joins Realizing Children's Strengths Board of Directors

OCTOBER 30, 2019

Eileen Lee Breger has joined the Board of Directors of Realizing Children's Strengths (RCS) Learning Center, a not-for-profit private special education school in Natick that provides behavioral and educational services to children on the autism spectrum and with other developmental disabilities.

Eileen, a former Associate Director of Women in NAAAP, National Association of Asian American Professionals, Boston Chapter, and former chair of the Boston Estate Planning Council's Webinars and Seminars Committee, had this to say about RCS and her new position in an RCS press release:

"I truly believe in the mission of Realizing Children's Strengths. As a board member, my mindset is to learn as much as possible about RCS Learning Center: its history, impactful role in the educational field along with the organization's past and current challenges," said Eileen Lee Breger. Adding, "It is my role to help RCS achieve its goals and meet its vision in a strategic way. I am honored and humbled to offer my knowledge, resources and networks with the hopes of bridging relationships to further the growth of the school."
