Brian Mullin Spoke at “The Current State of Title IX (and How a Biden Administration Might Change Things)” (Webinar)

Title IX issues have been in flux over the past two administrations, and the new Biden team may decide to implement additional changes.

On April 6, 2021, Brian Mullin spoke at the webinar “The current state of Title IX (and how a Biden administration might change things)” presented by Massachusetts Lawyers Weekly.

Watch the recording for a discussion among the panel of experts on the current landscape, what issues they are seeing now, the likelihood of change and what those changes might look like. The panelists will consider these questions from a range of perspectives: K-12, colleges and universities, students and faculty.
