INSIGHTS + NEWS

Bob Young Quoted in Worcester Telegram's "COVID-19 vaccination: Some of Worcester's biggest employers will mandate workers get a jab"

SEPTEMBER 3, 2021

As more and more workplaces welcome employees back to the office, companies are requiring employees to be vaccinated against COVID-19. In some instances, employees could get fired if they don't comply. The Worcester Telegram spoke with Bob Young about what companies are legally allowed to do.

> Companies can also ask employees for proof of vaccination, according to Young, but it's limited to a "yes" or "no" question. Anything beyond, like asking an employee why they didn't get vaccinated, can morph into an impermissible medical inquiry.

Continue reading "COVID-19 vaccination: Some of Worcester's biggest employers will mandate workers get a jab" on the Worcester Telegram website (subscription required).

©2026 Bowditch & Dewey LLP. All Rights Reserved.