

INSIGHTS + NEWS

Amanda Zuretti Moderated “Clean/Renewable Energy Incentives for Business” Panel at Worcester Business Journal’s Massachusetts Energy Summit

Global warming, as well as high oil and gas prices have contributed to a very challenging energy marketplace. Those conditions have only put more pressure on the need to transform to green, renewable energy. The Worcester Business Journal’s Massachusetts Energy Summit, produced in partnership with National Grid, helped businesses, nonprofits, municipalities and consumers understand their energy options.

Amanda Zuretti moderated the panel “Clean/Renewable Energy Incentives for Business,” which highlighted the combination of state and federal incentives, how to access them and how to evaluate the ROI on clean energy investments. Panelists included Jennifer Daloisio, CEO, Massachusetts Clean Energy Center; Muthu Jeevanantham, General Manager for Bonded and Super Abrasives – North America, Saint-Gobain Abrasives and Jeffrey N. Roy, State Representative for the 10th Norfolk District of Massachusetts, Chair, Utilities & Energy Committee, State of Massachusetts.