Worcester, Framingham and Boston, MA — January 5, 2024 — Brigid Harrington and Danielle Jurema Lederman, two accomplished attorneys, were elected to partner at Bowditch & Dewey.

Harrington, a higher education and employment attorney, helps colleges and universities with a range of issues, including crisis management, policy drafting, and civil rights compliance. Before joining Bowditch, Harrington was the Director of Civil Rights at the University of Massachusetts and a member of Harvard University's Office for Dispute Resolution. She has embraced private practice and flourished at Bowditch, bringing her expertise in an important area of the law, and serving as a stellar mentor to junior lawyers at the firm.

Repeatedly honored as a Super Lawyers rising star, she also was cited in Best Lawyers in America in 2023 and 2024 for her work in litigation. She earned her J.D. from Northeastern University and B.A. from the University of Florida.

"We are thrilled to promote two outstanding attorneys to partner," said Timothy Van Dyck, practice area leader, employment and labor. "We admire their client focus, dedication to the team, and contributions to the community. We are lucky to have them as colleagues."
