Financial Support for Qualifying Small Business and Non-Profits Impacted by the Coronavirus Outbreak

BY RORY Z. FAZENDEIRO • MARCH 19, 2020

While businesses of all sizes are feeling the adverse consequences brought on by the coronavirus outbreak, small businesses and non-profits, in particular, are acutely susceptible to immediate financial and operational hardships such as reduced cash-flow, temporary closures, supply chain disruptions or changed customer behaviors.

Federal, state and local governments have taken steps to provide financial relief to certain qualifying businesses impacted by COVID-19. Such packages are typically in the form of short-term loans, but with below market interest rates and other favorable terms that may be an attractive option to a small or non-profit business needing a financial stop-gap to weather the storm.

Some available alternatives are described below:

FEDERAL

The U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) is offering Disaster Assistance Loans to small businesses impacted by COVID-19.

- Loans up to $2 million in funding for qualifying small businesses and private non-profit organizations impacted by the coronavirus outbreak.
- Loans may be used to pay fixed debts, payroll, accounts payable and other costs.
- The interest rate is 3.75% for small businesses without credit available elsewhere; businesses with credit available elsewhere are not eligible. The interest rate for non-profits is 2.75%.
- Offers long-term repayments in order to keep payments affordable, up to a maximum of 30 years. Terms are determined on a case-by-case basis, based upon each borrower's ability to repay.

- The deadline to apply for an Economic Injury Disaster Loan is December 17, 2020.
