

DON'T TAX YOURSELF

A Publication of Bowditch & Dewey's Estate, Financial & Tax Planning Group

Maria Remillard Writes “How Prenup Agreements Can Avoid Nasty Surprises For Couples” for Financial Advisor

BY MARIA L. ROCKWELL REMILLARD • DECEMBER 22, 2021

Almost everyone can benefit from prenuptial agreements these days. Discussing financial issues (both assets and debts) during wedding preparations can strengthen relationships, and creating a prenuptial agreement can save a lot of emotional anguish and legal costs down the road. Here is an excerpt of Maria Remillard's article in Financial Advisor:

In Massachusetts, for instance, courts divide premarital and inherited assets in divorce cases—unless there is a prenuptial agreement. If a husband or wife dies without such an agreement in place, the surviving spouse could go to court and override a will.

Continue reading the full article “How Prenup Agreements Can Avoid Nasty Surprises For Couples” in Financial Advisor.